Says Chester Has Nothing to Do With Oil Concessions

Ismet Pasha Confirms Assertion Made by Canadian Officer Now in Lausanne.

(By Raymond Fendrick.)
(Copyright, 1923, By Chicago Tribune.)

LAUSANNE, May 13.—Admiral Chester has nothing to do with the concessions called by his name, and the real organizer of the scheme which disturbed the chancelleries of the world is Colonel Kenneth Clayton-Kennedy, a brisk little Canadian.

Colonel Clayton-Kennedy arrived here tonight from Constantinople for a conference with the Turkish delegation and made this surprising revelation in no uncertain tones.

"The admiral is an agreeable old gentleman, but he has absolutely nothing in the world to do with what the people call the Chester concessions," he said.

Ismet Pasha smilingly confirmed this assertion.

"The admiral has spent the past three years running around and trying to sell things which do not belong to him," Colonel Clayton-Kennedy remarked tolerantly. "The admiral has absolutely nothing to do with the negotiations which brought the concessions from the Angora assembly, and the admiral's son, Arthur, was only a salaried employee of our Constantinople office."

Colonel Clayton-Kennedy conferred two hours with Ismet, later arranging his departure early tomorrow for Paris, where he is going soon to New York.

The Canadian engineer was accompanied by Soubay Bey, an important Turkish official, the chief liaison between the so-called Chester concessions and the Angora government. Soubay will remain at Lausanne with Ismet.

Colonel Clayton-Kennedy explained that his concession is backed by Turkey, Manufacturing Company, and also E. S. Blackall, both Wall Street bankers, as well as other American capital.

"We do not need money," he remarked quietly but not boastfully. "The work on these concessions will begin within two months on a large scale. The capital has all been provided and negotiations began, almost a year ago."

The original Chester concessions which the admiral obtained ten years ago from the Turks, was very small and unimportant. They are included in the present concessions because the Angora government does not recognize the old concessions. They comprise about one-seventh of the present concessions, mistakenly called by Admiral Chester's name.

Colonel Clayton-Kennedy's assertion is supported by the Turkish delegation, which all along has called the concessions by the company name "Ottoman-American Development Company."

Next Thursday Is Bundle Day

Thursday will be observed as Clothing Bundle Day for the Near East by a proclamation made by Mayor Harry Wooding.

There are fully 500,000 men, women and little children in the Near East absolutely dependent upon what the American people do within the next few months.

This is an appeal to the housewives of Danville to gather up all the old clothing around the home and bundle it up and on Friday, May 18, place it out in front of the home. It will be called for by boy scouts on a special emergency woman motor corps. The churches are furnishing the ladies with their automobiles and the boy scouts are helping. This appeal is endorsed by the Clergy, the schools and the Chamber of Commerce of Danville.

Six Jump From Trestle To Save Lives But Drown

(By The Associated Press.)
ROCK ISLAND, Ill., May 14.—Six young people, three men and three women, were drowned last night in the Mississippi river at Campbell's Island, just east of here when they jumped from a trestle to avoid being struck by a street car, control of which had been lost by the operator. The young people were walking back to East Moline after a dance at the island.

Mitchell Tells Hunt How, at 42, He Keeps In Condition

BRIG. GEN. WM. MITCHELL

Want to fly? Then what you need is reflexes not inflexion.

By Harry B. Hunt.
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON, May 14.—Want to fly? Then what you need is reflexes, not inflexion.

That's the advice of Brigadier General William Mitchell, assistant chief of the United States Army Air Service, and the "flyingest" individual has spent more than 2000 hours in the air, has flown 225,000 miles and despite his 43 years is getting "better and better" as a flier every day. I asked him how he did it.

"I just keep my reflexes limbered up," he replied.

"Meaning which?"

"Developing ability to act instinctively—by reflex action, in other words. When you're flying 200 miles an hour your reflexes must be quick. You haven't time to think—your action, your reflex, must be quicker than thought."

"How does one get that way—er, I mean, how does one develop and train his reflexes?"

"By exercises that require quick action and a sense of direction and equilibrium. Every aviator should do lots of horseback riding. That's good for his reflexes. Polo, tennis, golf shooting—they're all good. But above all—horseback riding. I've worked out three horses myself to-day—a glance at his watch showed 3:30 p. m.—and I'll take on at least one more."

A solidly knit wind-tanned, energetic figure is this aerial athlete who never suggests a flying stunt that he isn't ready to jump out and do himself. Impetuous, visionary, he has what can be done in aeronautics, but with the knack of putting across, through sheer energy, things that make the theorists shake their heads. What he might lack in reflection he makes up in reflexes.

"What other qualification is essential to a good flier?" I asked.

Good Morning Judge!

The mayor opened this morning's session of the police court with a word of praise to the entire police department for their faithful and efficient work on last Friday, circus day, when they worked in a most commendable manner that not a single accident or occurrence of the circus did not get an accusation on the congested streets occurred.

The docket was then proceeded with, although it was rather a brief one for Monday morning.

Some months ago Mrs. Marion Stone and her husband left their home in Detroit, having agreed that they would like the South for a change. The husband gave up his job on a railroad there and the couple set out for Atlanta. They stayed there for about six weeks but soon began to realize they did not like the life of a southerner and they began to work their way north again. They finally reached Greensboro, where a few days ago, the couple had a quarrel, which resulted in the husband slapping his wife, whereupon she left him and came to Danville yesterday and immediately on arriving sought some whiskey. She said she was ill. She is alleged to have approached Irvin Williams, a taxi driver, and asked him to get her some whiskey. Williams agreed to do so and she got into the car. She was last seen between 8 and 9 o'clock. It is alleged Williams took her to a place on the Design road where they were joined by three other men. They were soon at the bootlegging house. Williams got her the whiskey and she drank. The man then left in his machine, leaving her there with the three strangers. She alleges they made improper proposals to her and when she ignored them one of them threatened her with a knife and another with a pistol. She said she still declined their attention and one of them struck her a blow which sent her to the floor. The young woman stated that she finally made her escape and started to walk to town, a distance of several miles.

She hailed a car with two men and asked them to help her get to town. They, too, she said, approached her in an ungentlemanly manner and when she turned a deaf ear, they put her out of the machine into the dark road and she started to walk to town. In the meantime, Police Officer L. A. Adams was approached by a man, who informed him that he had passed a machine on the Design road and that he saw a woman apparently very excited and trying to make her escape. When at a point parallel with the Sanatorium they met the woman walking in the road. She was said to have been under the influence of whiskey. They took her in charge and brought her to the police station, where they questioned her closely.

As related to the police, the story is told above, which resulted in the arrest of Williams as the driver of the taxi. Williams was charged with violating the Mapp act and with robbing the young woman of $5 in currency.

At the hearing, Williams was fined $51 and sentenced to six months in jail on the liquor charge. It was his second offense. Counsel for the defendant noted an appeal. The warrant charging him with the theft of the money from the woman, was dismissed. Mrs. Stone stated that it was her husband who took the money but one of the three men in the house on the Design road. The identity of the men are not known but the woman states that she could identify any of them should they be brought before her. She identified Williams as the driver of the taxi and secured the liquor for her. The identity of the men who gave her a lift to town and then abandoned her on the road is also not known.

With the appeal of the liquor case, which will come before the June term of the corporation court, it means that Mrs. Stone must remain in jail until that time, as she could not give bond this morning. She pleaded that she be permitted to go home, stating that she would come back in June, but she was regarded as the only witness against Williams, therefore she is being held.

Williams denied that he is the man. He stated that he did not see the woman last night, but admitted taking her to Schoolfield yesterday morning from the station. Mrs. Stone denied this, claiming that she knew nothing of Schoolfield and had not seen Williams until last night.

The following other cases were disposed of:

Robert Jackson, colored, submitted to a charge of violating the Mapp act and was fined $51 and costs and given a thirty-day suspended sentence.

R. G. Clark, fined $21 and costs for speeding.

W. P. Eastley, arrested with three others yesterday, submitted to driving the automobile, in which the men were riding, while under the influence of whiskey, was fined $101 and costs. The three other men were assessed the usual eleven dollars and costs for giving the machine across the Washam street bridge, which is a violation.

H. Brown fined $16 and costs for violating the traffic ordinance.

Walter Coates fined $21 and costs for speeding.

There were about a dozen drunk cases dealt with, most of which were submitted to and the usual fines imposed.

NEW YORK COTTON.

(By The Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, May 14.—The vigorous decline of last week was followed by rallies in the cotton market today owing to reports of unfavorable weather over the week-end and steady Liverpool cables. Orders appear to be divided at the opening advance of 16 to 21 points and there was some irregularity after the call but the tone was firm and prices advanced on a broadening of the demand.

Two-Story Dwelling To Be Bodily Moved From Jefferson To Pine Street

An interesting engineering feat is soon to be witnessed on Jefferson street when a two-story eight-room frame dwelling, now standing at the corner of Loyal and Wilson street, will be placed on rollers and moved bodily to a lot on Pine street, a short distance from the Jefferson street end. E. C. Arcey who owns the two-end houses opposite the General Hospital, recently purchased the site on Pine street and awarded the contract to S. A. Patterson to perform the somewhat delicate task of moving the house.

Messrs Bauman and Murr intend erecting on the site, rendered vacant by the removal of the dwelling a modern and up-to-date gasoline filling station and a car laundry, this to represent an investment of about $20,000 and to be ready for occupation by July 1st.

Enquiry today revealed that the gasoline station has been sanctioned by the staff of the General Hospital who apparently are satisfied that it will not be obnoxious to that institution. Mr. Bauman and others interested in the project took this matter up with the hospital authorities some time ago and as one of the members of the medical staff said today the matter had been "thrashed out" in a satisfactory manner.

The building permit has already been given an O. K. by City Engineer R. K. Linville who has also granted permission for the use of the street in moving the large house upon the assurance that the moving would be done on stout beams and that the "spall" pavement would not be injured. It is probable that the actual moving of the house will be done at night so as to cause the least possible obstruction to traffic. The house has already been severed from its foundations and is packed up from the ground. The heavy wooden rollers have already arrived and sometime this week it is expected that the housemoving will be undertaken. Mr. Patterson has had a good deal of experience in these matters and while a formidable undertaking, the feat is not considered as unusual. Several years ago the entire Southern railway station was moved several feet en masse from its original resting place to the site on which it now stands.

Almost Smothered Says Mrs. Ellwinger

Declares Indigestion Was So Bad She Thought Days Were Numbered — Eats Anything Now and Praises Tanlac For Return of Health.

"Indigestion and nervousness had me where I was feeling sick and worn-out all the time. Almost everything disagreed with me and I had violent attacks of indigestion when my body felt like it was in a vise. At such times, the pains almost cut off my breath and I thought I would die. One day while visiting a friend, I had one of my worst spells and when it was over she said: 'Take Tanlac and it will stop those attacks.' Well, she was right, for the treatment soon had me eating heartily, gaining weight and not feeling a touch of indigestion. That was several months ago and to this day I haven't had a single attack and my health has been fine."

"Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Take no substitute. Over 35 million bottles sold.—adv."

"I've often talked to people, who were enthusiastic about Tanlac, but I never realized what a grand medicine it is until I took it myself," said Mrs. H. E. Ellwinger, 814 Eighth Ave., S. E. Roanoke, Va., recently.

Indigestion and its attendant ills such as dyspepsia, heart-burn, sour stomach, cramping pains, dizziness, diarrhoea, colic, cholera morbus, chronic constipation, gas, etc., and even sick, nervous headaches are now directly traceable to disorders in the digestive organs.

The food stays before it is fully digested, thus putting into solution toxic poisons that are absorbed into the system, irritating the intestines and setting up inflammation. To avoid this, you simply have to prevent fermentation by using Anti-Ferment.

Anti-Ferment neutralizes the acid condition of the stomach, cleanses and sweetens the bowels, soothes and heals the inflamed intestines and increases the flow of gastric juices, giving quick and certain relief. Get a bottle of Anti-Ferment from your druggist with a guarantee of satisfactory results or money returned.  SWITZERLAND'S DIFFICULTY

The assassination of M. Vorovsky, the Soviet representative who was invited to the Near East peace conference at Lausanne in the capacity of an observer, has caused a great deal of trouble for the Swiss government. There is little doubt that the tragedy has caused the greatest sensation since the assassination of Austria in Geneva. Vorovsky's death has already created a serious reaction in Russia and Switzerland will have to answer in the light of the terms for the crime committed by one of its natives Alexander Conrad, who through personal vengeance shot the man in a hotel.

Switzerland occupies a dangerous situation. Hemmed in on all sides by countries whose national ideals are conflicting, she has been regarded as the only neutral country wherein asylum could be sought and so Lausanne was chosen for the scene of the present conference because its atmosphere was less surcharged than that which could be found anywhere else.

While the assassination of the Soviet emissary apparently has no political significance since the slayer has denied this saying that he killed the man because of the ill treatment he and his father received at the hands of the Russian government, it will be hard for Russians to believe it. Switzerland will be held responsible for its failure to afford the protection expected of it however hard it might be. Whether a case of negligence can be made out legally against the Swiss government remains to be seen. In the light of the assassin's confession it would seem that no grave charge could properly rest upon Bern—any more than the police force of any city could be taken to task for preventing a sudden and unexpected murder. It is manifestly impossible to afford personal protection of scores of prominent men gathered at the conference continuously from the evil purpose of individuals cherishing motives of revenge.

Vorovsky's death will tend to further stir up the murky waters of the conference and will render more difficult the arrival at conclusions acceptable to Russia.

Reunited—In Prison After 15 Years Daughter Finds Parents

AUBURN, N. Y., May 14.—Mary Rizzo, 15-year-old school girl, knew she had a father and mother. For wasn't she just like her playmates? And didn't they all have parents?

MARY RIZZO

But she never knew hers. They had disappeared from her life when she was still a baby, five months old. Friends of the family adopted her. They took her from Oswego, where she lived her care-free life, keeping the secret of her parentage a mystery.

But now the girl has learned the truth. Her father and mother were in prison for murder.

It was a shock, the other day when she first visited Auburn, to find her parents behind the bars of the state penitentiary.

"But they are alive," said the girl happily, "and I'm so glad."

"At last I know where my father and mother really are."

"Of course, it's a terrible thing to be in prison, but it might be worse. It's going to be my chief ambition in life now to gain their release."

After her father had learned that his daughter had discovered the truth, hidden from her for years, Vincenzo Rizzo, the father, appealed to Warden E. S. Jennings, and the warden arranged the meeting between the girl and her parents.

A new wing room is not a cheerful place. It radiated happiness when Mary entered it. At last her dream was coming true. She was going to see her real parents for the first time in her memory.

The rattle of the warden's keys, the creak of the heavy iron gate, the swing of the gray cell door, were music to her ears. Her parents were coming.

Grasped and worn by the five years behind the bars, they entered the room. But they were beautiful to the girl.

It was a reunion for the parents, not only with their child, but with themselves, too. They had seen each other only once since they entered the prison in 1918.

SUGAR CASE NOT LIKE TO COME UP BEFORE AUTUMN

(By The Associated Press)
 WASHINGTON, May 12.—Argument of the government's injunction suit against the New York Sugar Exchange in the Supreme Court before next October appears improbable despite arrangements made today for an immediate appeal. Unless the Supreme Court grants an unusual dispensation for immediate hearings, the appeal will go over, with hundreds of others, until the October term.

All Supreme Court arguments for the present term were terminated last Monday to prepare for the usual clean up of decisions prior to the court's summer adjournment June 11. The government still has the privilege of asking for a hearing before adjournment, but Department of Justice officials said tonight that such a step appeared improbable. A definite decision will be reached upon the return here early next week of Assistant Attorney General Seymour, who has personal charge of the sugar suit.

Letters from Sally Attention to her friend, Beatrice Grimshaw.

DEAR BEE: Someone has said that everybody tells something to everyone and if these people should get together and the things they had said to each other would be found that everyone has told all the secrets of her inmost heart.

Bee, I am the unhappy woman in all the world. I do not understand why I married. (By the way, does anyone ever really understand why one marries?)

Oh yes, I know that Sam is the dearest boy in all the world and I have always known that he drank too much, but I thought now that prohibition was here, he could not get liquor.

I wrote you about his drinking with his boss. Well that started him, and a next night he did not come home to dinner. All night long I waited for him and, Bee, I suffered the torments of the damned.

The next day about 9 o'clock, when I had just about made up my mind to ring up the office and see if he had gotten there on time, a call came to me from the psychopathic ward of the Good Samaritan Hospital.

He thought he was going to skirt around the consequences. Everybody is always ready to apply the law of compensation to everyone else but himself.

And Bee, to make the matter worse, I had a call from Sam's boss this morning. He told me he took Sam out to luncheon especially to tell him that he thought he was drinking too much.

When I asked him if he had not offered Sam a drink at the same time that he gave the warning, without even having the grace to blush, he said, "Why, of course, I always have a cocktail or a highball with my meals, but I can afford to buy good liquor and Sam can't."

Bee, then and there I made up my mind that no man was worth one headache. Mr. White thought he was particularly generous when he said, "I will pay you Sam's salary for the next two weeks. By that time it will be definitely known whether he will recover from his blindness. Of course, if he does not he can't expect to be a pensioner on my bounty all his life. He has only himself to blame for all this trouble."

"He won't expect it, Mr. White," I said. "I hope you will excuse me now as I am leaving the house to go and see my husband at the hospital. He will tell him of your generous offer."

I suppose Leslie and her husband are perfectly happy. I wonder what terrible thing I did to enrage Fate that such an unhappy lot should be sent to me.

Your despairing friend, SALLY.

TOMORROW: Leslie Prescott to Beatrice Grimshaw—Little annoyance, that's all.

FLOWING GOLD

Calvin Gray occupies the most expensive suite in the most exclusive hotel in Dallas. Having introduced himself to the hotel manager, to the president of the largest bank and to the mayor, he manages to secure a room in the hotel. In the hotel room Gray meets an old friend, who is vice president of the largest bank in Dallas. Gray offers to go to Ranger and sell some valuable diamonds to Gus Briskow, who has struck oil. Barbara Parker, daughter of Tom Parker, returns to her home in Dallas, having spent four years in college.

They argued that a region so poor above-ground must of necessity contain values of some sort beneath the surface. But as for other natural resources, they scouted the belief in such.

Nevertheless, petroleum was discovered, and among the fraternity that dealt in it Ranger became a word of contradiction and of deep meaning.

The town became a mobilization point, a vast concentration camp for supplies, and amid its feverish activity there was no rest, no Sundays or holidays.

This was about the state of affairs that Calvin Gray found on the morning of his arrival. He and Mallow had managed to secure a Pullman section on the night train from Dallas.

From the first Mallow had laid himself out to be entertaining and helpful, and Gray obligingly permitted him to have his way. When they had finished breakfast, he even allowed his companion to hire an automobile and driver for him. They shook hands and finally the best friends parted.

The Briskow farm, it appeared, lay about twenty miles out, but twenty miles over oil-field roads proved to be quite a journey.

"Gray's driver finally pointed out the Briskow ranch. The house, an unsightly story-and-a-half affair, stood at the back of what had once been a cultivated field.

Nobody answered Gray's knock at the front door, so he walked around the house. Over the garden fence, grown thick with brambles, he beheld two feminine figures, or rather two faded sunbonnets topping two pairs of shoulders, and as he drew nearer he saw that one woman was bent and slow moving, while the other was a huge creature, wide of hip and deep of bosom, whose bare arms, burnt to a rich golden brown, were like those of a blacksmith, and who wielded her heavy hoe as if it were a toy. She was singing in a thin, nasal, uncultivated voice.

Evidently they were the Briskow "help," therefore Gray made his presence known and inquired for the master or mistress of the place. The elder woman turned, exposing a shrewd, benevolent face, and after a moment of appraisal said, "I'm Mrs. Briskow."

"Indeed!" the visitor smiled his best and announced the nature of his errand.

Capital C. Of C. To Hold Va. Night

BY GEORGE H. MANNING
 WASHINGTON, D. C., May 12.—The Washington Chamber of Commerce is making elaborate preparations for the celebration of "Virginia Night" on Tuesday when Governor Trinkle and the Virginia Senators and Representatives are expected to attend and deliver addresses.

Governor Trinkle is coming, it is understood, with Mrs. Trinkle and Colonel H. M. Smith, the governor's chief of staff.

Invitations have been extended by the Washington Chamber of Commerce to Senator Swanson and Glass and the Virginia congressmen. Several of the congressmen have made known their intention to be present. Senator Glass wrote that he had an engagement to speak before the Southern Cotton Manufacturers Association in Richmond that night and would therefore be unable to attend.

I. J. Marcus, president, and J. W. Gawthrop, secretary of the Richmond Chamber of Commerce, and the president and secretary of the Alexandria Chamber of Commerce have been invited to be present at this meeting intended to strengthen the friendly relations between the business men of Washington and Virginia.

Colonel R. H. Harper of Leesburg, Virginia, and prominent Washington banker, four times president of the Washington Chamber, will respond to Governor Trinkle.

CHAPTER V
 FOR perhaps half an hour the woman tried on one piece of jewelry after another, exclaiming, admiring, arguing, then the mother realized with a start that meal time was near and that the menfolk would soon be home. Leaving Alice to entertain the guest, she hurried out, and the sound of splashing kindling, the clatter of stove lids, the rattle of utensils came from the kitchen.

Gray retired to the patent rocker. Miss Briskow settled herself upon a straight-backed chair and folded her capable hands in her lap; an oppressive silence fell upon the room. Having exhausted the usual commonplace topics in the course of her monologue that induced no reaction whatever, Gray voiced a perfectly natural remark about the wonder of sudden riches. He was, in a way, thinking aloud of the changes wrought in drab lives like the Briskows' by the discovery of oil. He was surprised when Allegheny responded:

"Ma and me stand it all right, but it's an awful strain on Pa," said she. "Indeed?"

"He's not dodged. He's got more nutty notions."

Gray endeavored to learn the nature of Pa's recently acquired eccentricities, but Alle was flushing and palling as a result of her sudden excursion into the audible. Eventually she tumbled upon the verge of speech once more, then she took another desperate plunge.

"His folks are going to laugh at us or with us, and—rich people have got to act rich. They got to be elegant." She laughed loudly, abruptly, and the explosive nature of the sound startled her as greatly as it did her hearer. "He's got to get somebody to teach Buddy and me how to behave."

Gray's girl was beginning to lose her painful embarrassment, she showed to somewhat better advantage and no longer impressed him, as before, almost stupid. "First off, Ma and me are goin' over to Dallas to do some tradin'," the girl was saying. "After that we're goin' to the mountains."

"Your mother mentioned mountains?"

"Yep. Her and Pa have allus been crazy about mountains, but they never seen 'em. That's how me and Buddy came to be named Allegheny and Ozark. But we never expected to see 'em. The drought burned us out too often."

Gus Briskow was a sandy, angular man; a grin of his face and a head of hair faded to match the color of his beard; his greasy overalls were tucked into boots, and a ragged Joseph's coat covered his dapper shirt.

He came directly in to greet his visitor, then said: "I never expected you'd come 'way out here an' bring your blunder with you. Ma says you set a bull griftful o' d'men's."

"I have, indeed," Gray pointed to the glittering display laid spread out upon the varicolored counterpane.

Briskow approached the bed and gazed curiously, silently down at the treasure. Then his face broke into a sunny smile. "He wiped his hands upon his trousers legs and picked up a ring. But instead of examining the jewel he looked at the price mark, after which his smile broadened.

Ozark had entered behind his father, and his sister introduced him now. He was a year or two younger than Allegheny, but cast in the same heroic mold.

The elder Briskow spoke first, and it was evident that he feared to say a word of conversation for he said, with admirable restraint: "Likely-looking lot of trinkets, eh, Bud?"

But grunted. After a moment he inquired of Gray, "How much is that bull lot worth, Mater?"

"Close to a hundred thousand dollars,"

HIGHER BIDDER GETS CONTRACT FOR HIGHWAY

RICHMOND, Va., May 12.—Though the bid of J. E. Lane and Company, of Scottsville, was nearly $10,000 under the bid submitted by Johnston of Arlington County, for the piece of state highway between Falls Church and Fairfax, the bid will go to Johnston. This was the decision of the chairman of the commission in the matter when he discovered that D. H. Pitts, of Scottsville, a member of the legislature, is a member of the firm of Lane and Company. Chairman Shirley has ruled that the members of the legislature are not to be considered bidders on contracts for road work, and as the legislature, at the special session did not correct the matter, which had been previously raised to his ruling.

Whole Nation Seems to Feel The Eyes of Mussolini

BY WILLIAM PHILIP SIMMS

Rome, May 12.—Is Benito Mussolini, prime minister of Italy, a strange, new kind of Svengali? And is Italy playing the role of Trilby—an entire nation under the spell of this strange man's eyes?

Tonight I interviewed Mussolini and I confess I am inclined to believe this more than half true. From the moment I entered his amazing office in the new Foreign Affairs Building here I had this feeling, a sensation I remember having only once before. That was when I interviewed Mme. de Thebes, the celebrated sorceress of Paris, now dead, in her mysterious room hung all round with black velvet and lighted only by the glow from crystal globes used in her practice of Black Magic.

I have interviewed kings and emperors, presidents and princes, premiers, dictators and a manner of men and women, but Mussolini impressed me as none of these impressed me.

His "Different" Statesman.

I mean he is different from any statesman I ever saw, as different as night from day. He talked with political leaders whose profoundity impressed me more, whose ideas seemed to me to be fundamentally more sound and in whose hands I would prefer to see placed the destiny of my own land.

But I have seen none other anything like Mussolini, the man with the hypnotic eyes, "black magic" statesman of Italy, the man who stares at the citizens of his country, from king on down the line, and they all sing to his bidding—like Svengali made Trilby sing in the romance which everyone has read.

Does Mussolini realize his hypnotic power? He must. The first thing that met my eyes as I came ashore at Brindisi, was down in southern Italy, was a billboard picture of the Fascist leader, a picture so extraordinary that it held me spellbound until I could make out what it was all about. The head was inclined forward just a trifle and from under beetling brows two enormous black eyes, the whites showing all round, huge, exaggerated eyes that stared straight at you and into you and through you precisely like the hypnotic stage pictures of William Ladd as Svengali.

Pictures Seen Everywhere.

All over Brindisi I kept finding myself sniped at from the ambush of every fence and wall by those two orbs I could well imagine the effect this must have on the ignorant and less sophisticated peasants of the country. My sole object in coming to Italy was to see and talk with the remarkable Parliament and made his word supreme.

VETERANS STAGE COMEBACK AND WIN TENNIS DOUBLES

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, May 12.—R. Norris Williams, Philadelphia, and Watson Washburn, New York, won the Chevy Chase invitation tennis doubles tournament here this afternoon, defeating Vincent Richards, Yonkers, New York, and M. Fukuda, Japan, 3-6, 6-4, 7-5, 6-3, in the finals.

The veterans doubles combination staged a comeback on their youthful opponents after dropping the first set and falling behind in the second in which Williams' smashing play largely accounted for the victory.

—David Lorinson has been endorsed by State Senator Brooker of Halifax for a four year state scholarship at the Medical College of Virginia.

BENITO MUSSOLINI AND HIS SVENGALI-LIKE EYES.

For that is what Mussolini did and able owner of those eyes—the man who had turned Italy, almost overnight, into an armed camp ready to do his bidding—the man who marched on Rome with a powerful army at his back and "took" it without firing a shot, took it and forced the king to do his will—the man who dissolved the nobody is more keenly aware of this fact than Mussolini himself.

He openly boasts that he has but to wave his hand and 100,000 "Black Shirts"—Fascist soldiers—will snap into action and obey his slightest word.

TOMORROW: In Svengali Mussolini's workshop, Simms will give you a "close-up" of this statesman with the hypnotic stare.

PORTSMOUTH TAX IS MORE THAN NEWPORT NEWS

BY GEORGE H. MANNING

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 12.—Residents of Portsmouth last year paid considerably more for running their city government than those of Newport News.

The costs of government for the city of Portsmouth for the fiscal year ended December 31, 1922, amounted to $1,949,563, or a per capita cost of $34.51. In 1917 the per capita cost was $12.71 and in 1914, $11.84, the totals for these years being $500,233 and $435,077, respectively.

Newport News' governmental costs last year were $1,008,250, or $28.23 per capita. The total revenue receipts in Portsmouth were $25.24 per capita, leaving an excess of $9.26 per capita of costs over receipts. Newport News collected $24.19 per capita, having an excess of costs over receipts of only $4.13.

In Portsmouth property taxes represented 49.4 per cent of the total revenue for 1922, 63.3 per cent for 1917, and 49.4 per cent for 1914. The increase in the amount of property taxes collected was 77.2 per cent from 1914 to 1917, and 13.0 per cent from 1917 to 1922. The per capita property taxes for the three specified years were $12.47, $7.73, and $4.66, respectively. In Newport News property taxes represented 73.3 per cent of the total revenue for 1922, being a per capita of $17.73.

Earnings of public service enterprises operated by the city of Portsmouth represented 26.8 per cent of the total revenue for 1922, 1.1 per cent for 1917, and 1.4 per cent for 1914. Receipts from water supply system amounted to more than one half of the receipts from taxes, according to reports made to the Bureau of the Census. Business and non-business enterprises contributed 8.9 per cent of the total revenue for 1922, 8.9 per cent for 1917, and 17.2 per cent for 1914.

The net indebtedness of Portsmouth was $117.29 per capita for 1922, $47.13 per capita for 1917, and $44.09 for 1914. Newport News' net capita indebtedness in 1922 was only $47.29.

The assessed valuation of property in Portsmouth and Newport News in 1922 was almost identically the same, $41,750,064 and $41,753,156, respectively. The levy for all purposes for 1922 in Portsmouth was $870,495, in Newport News $869,334.

The per capita costs for 1922 in Portsmouth consisted of expenses of general department, $16.22; expenses of public service enterprises, $2.61; payments for interest $6.55, and for outlays, $9.63.

PROFESSOR PUTNAM IS PRIZE WINNER

The following from the Spartanburg, S. C. Journal will be of interest in this city and particularly to the friends of the composer pianist who has won new laurels:

"The prizes in the department of music of the South Carolina Federation of Women's Clubs were awarded Tuesday by Mrs. E. M. Stuckey, chairman of that department, as follows: First prize, ten dollars in gold, awarded by Mrs. LeRoy Springs of Lancaster, was won by Eugene Putnam, of Laurens county, for his song, 'I Hear a Mighty Rumbling.' Second prize, medal offered by Mrs. J. A. Merritt, of St. Matthews was won by Miss Willette Wilburn, of Bennettsville, for her piano composition, 'The Sandstorm.' Mrs. Putnam is a native of South Carolina but is now teaching in Averett College, Danville, Va. He is rapidly becoming one of the best known American composers, being known on many concert programs by his compositions, 'Nocturne,' 'The Quilt Dance' and 'Humoresque.' The Quilt Dance was dedicated to ex-Governor A. R. Cooper. His present prize is a type of song of which Mr. Putnam has made a special study. Mr. Putnam made a comprehensive and exhaustive study of negro spirituals a few years ago and published his results in an article in the Musical Courier. He has also harmonized more than 50 Carolina folk songs."

Lunacy On Toes; World Dance Mad

By Nazzariene Dunn Kanihille.
There is nothing new under the sun. The energetic young ladies and gentlemen who are engaged, just now, in making non-stop dancing records may fancy they are something new in the history of the world. But they are not—the world has gone dancing-mad before now.

The present outburst of insanity, we may be sure, will not last as long as some of its predecessors did. Newspaper publicity will kill it. Before newspapers were, a lunatic could get quite a reputation in his own little circle. But nowadays no sooner has a prize lunatic appeared in the Glasgow, than some other newspaper in New York points out that New York possesses an even bigger idiot. Then comes the claims of Boston, Chicago and St. Louis to pride of place in the competition for the Glasgow record. Lunatic, mad-dance, few weeks it is all of a kind, and the world grows weary of silliness too concentrated.

Glasgow Starts It.
It all began a couple of months ago, with a Glasgow couple who danced for a year and a half, thereby establishing, it was thought, a world's record. It was thought, more than the previous best. At 5:50, when this culminating moment in human history was reached, the crowd's assembly gave the couple a tremendous ovation, and the two champions (there seems to have been one for each of the dancers) struck up "See the Conquering Hero Comes." The hall was packed, and admission charged outside.

But this triumph was short-lived. Only ten days later an Edinburgh couple blew the Glasgow record sky-high with a continuous performance of 14 hours 15 minutes, a nasty one for Glasgow.

Then Hull, just by way of showing how easy the thing was, kept it for 17 hours 45 minutes—only to find itself snubbed by Edinburgh, who, however, did not give in till after 21 hours 16 minutes.

And then Edinburgh had to bend its proud head before Marseilles, where a dancer kept going for 24 hours 45 minutes 5 seconds. The record, however, is not yet closed; these things are important.

But, alas for Marseilles! Only a couple of days later came the inspiring news of "the world's fox-trot record" from some little place in England.

Finally the Scottish lunacy conquered England, invaded France and now is making its rapid inroads in the United States.

The Aftermath of Crisis.
As I have said, the world has gone dancing-mad before now, and for much the same reason. After every great crisis there is a certain excitement in the air that proves too much for some people. They have to be up and doing something or other—it does not greatly matter what; and as physical movement is the most primitive way of working off nervous excitement, the legs and arms get going.

The present non-stop dancing can safely be attributed to the main, to the after-effects of the war.

In the 14th and 15th centuries a similar mania ran through Europe as one of the after-effects of the great plague known as "the Black Death."

In America, according to the latest reports, a lunatic has reached the 15th hour limit.

But how poor a show he put up in comparison with that of the servant girl in Basel in 1515, who, in the course of time, tells us, "was seized with such an awful dancing madness that she kept it up for a whole month, making herself ill and dancing away the soles of her feet."

The Olden Way.
They did the thing thoroughly in those days. No scientific training for the affair, no administration of refreshments during the dance.

You just went crazy—and danced. Half a town would go mad and dance for days; some would drop dead, others would throw themselves into the river, others dash their brains out against the walls—three features of the performance that might be recommended to the modern record-breakers for imitation.

And the medieval authorities, instead of rhapsodizing over the dancers, took the much more sensible course of regarding them as poor devils not responsible for their actions, and laid them out in the churches (generally the church of St. Vitus, whose association with dancing was legendary), and prayer over them—or, in some cases, whipped them, taking the view that they had not to have so silly had they not the devil in them. I do not believe that praying is, under the circumstance, as good a remedy as a good sound whipping until the very devil is forced out of them.

One can have some sympathy for weak-minded people who do a foolish thing because they cannot help it. But one can have only an amused contempt for people who do a silly thing merely out of vanity. And of all forms of silliness, the worst that that thing can turn an insane action into an admirable one simply by keeping on at it longer than some one else.

A New Competition.
Why mix this sort of tameness with anything that even remotely resembles art?

The thing, in piano-playing is surely to make the piano say beautiful things, I only for five minutes not to make it say stupid things for five hours. And surely the thing in dancing is to feel, and to communicate, the joy of perfect physical and mental harmony, not to strike the floor with the force of so many foot-pounds per hour for so many hours.

If these Palaces de Danse heres and heroines really wish to win our admiration and gratitude, let them now compete for a new record—the world's longest non-stop rest.

AGED BOTTLE OF BEER FOUND BY EXCAVATORS
SALEM, Ore., May 12.—Salem made a bid for a place in the history of the world when workmen excavating for a new building unearthed a priceless relic of pre-Volstead days in the form of a bottle of beer, with contents intact. The find was made on the site of a former brewery, and authorities estimate it must be at least 32 years old. The fate of the relic has not been revealed but contractors report a general speeding up of the excavation since the discovery.

MERELY COLORED WATER IN "LITTLE BROWN JUG"
BARNESVILLE, Ohio, May 12.—At a local cakewalk a young man put brown coloring matter in a jug of water, then "lipped" his friends where they could find a drink. Someone informed the police, and the joker was taken to headquarters. His frenzied explanation finally prevailed, and he was released.

Play 15-Inning Tie In Raleigh

RALEIGH, May 12.—Raleigh and Greensboro staged a battle royal here this afternoon and after going for fifteen innings without either side winning the knot made by Greensboro in the seventh, the game was called on account of darkness. It was a pitchers' battle between Friday, for the locals, and Lankeneau for the visitors. The game ended with the score standing 1-1 all round. Lankeneau showed signs of weakening and Manager Carroll would take no chances and sent O'Quinn to the mound in the fifteenth. However, O'Quinn did not pitch but the one inning, allowing not a hit.

Raleigh scored her only run in the second inning. Valentine tripled and scored on Graves' second bagger. The Patriots tied the count in the seventh and no further runs were made. Cox tripled and scored when Conley duplicated with a bingle which also took him to third base.

The visitors staged a rally in the fifteenth. They had filled the bases and two were out. Graves saved the game by running far back and making a great one-hand stab of a line drive, which would no doubt, had it landed over his head, cleared the bases. It was a great play.

DISORDERS IN THE BRITISH PARLIAMENT, PAST AND PRESENT

By LADY DIANA COOPER
Crabbed age and youth cannot notoriously get on together, and the cause of it would seem to be that age is less crabbed against than youth. It sometimes seems almost as though, the principal object of criticism. The "knot," as he was called, his collar, his socks, his cigarettes, his motor-car—all formed targets for the arrows of youth. And there was no end to the demonstrations of his silliness and degeneracy.

Since that date, however, there have been reasons why even the most crabbed and cantankerous of our self-complacent and contemptuous of our elders have not dared to throw mud at young men, and, although it is more than four years since the war, the same reasons still apply. For the youngest, most beardless face may yet conceal a warrior, and children of flesh form the university. It may belong to the category who went "out" before they went "up."

This immunity from criticism will, of course, not continue. We may safely prophesy that in a very few years attention will be drawn to the degeneracy of the modern youth. It will be compared, very much to his disadvantage, with the type of youth who fought in the war.

Let the youth of tomorrow not be discouraged—he will be every bit as good as his predecessor, and let us only pray he never has a chance of proving it.

In the meanwhile, all the pent-up venom of the old has been loosed against the unfortunate young women of the present day.

The "flapper" bore the first brunt of the attack, which has been more widely distributed so as to include all women, married or unmarried, to whom the coveted but dangerous epithet of "young" applies.

What does it all amount to? What is the charge against the women of today?

It is not, I think, that she is morally more than the women of former generations but that she is sillier, less dignified, has less restraint, less sense of what is decent and becoming, than had the woman of, shall we say, two generations ago. This is an indictment which is too often and too easily admitted.

We cannot set two different generations side by side for purposes of the moment that men or women put on spectacles, they notice hideous shortcomings in younger people to which they had been blind before. And when they notice these shortcomings, they feel it their duty to proclaim them from the house-tops, for a sense of duty is put on with the spectacles.

This we must suppose, is human nature, and it seems probable that every generation has had dinner into its ungrateful head its vast inferiority to all other generations, but more especially to that which immediately preceded it. No doubt the early days of little Cain were embittered by his mother's (Satan's) accounts of what his elder brother Adam had been at the same age. And no doubt he believed every word she said, for it is characteristic of the old that they invariably succeed by endless repetition in convincing themselves that what they say is true.

The young do not retaliate by promiscuous abuse of the old. Perhaps they are too kind, or perhaps they are too humble, or perhaps they have something better to do.

So the old have it all their own way. Nor are they above seeking extraneous allies to assist them in their blood-curdling onslaught. They appeal shrilly to the Press, and their seldom appeal in vain. From campaigns against the young appear to be so popular that they are not con-landed altogether in the steeplechase after husbands she is "nowhere"—an outsider—a female muf. The girl of 1862 who is not "fast" is generally dull and blase, pleased with nothing, and possesses neither the wisdom of age nor the naivete of youth.

That is the opinion of Captain Gronow, whose youth was spent in the days of the regency, and whose later years were passed in the very zenith of the mid-Victorian epoch.

1862 is the year he selects as the one in which young women were all that he most desired.

1862—the very heyday of all our grandmothers!

If you change a few of the slang phrases, Captain Gronow's indictment might have been uttered by any of our living elders in condemnation of this generation.

It will, always be the same. The old will always condemn the young, and the young can very well afford to disregard these reproaches which hurt them no more than the slanders of the disappointed fox hunt the ripe grapes upon the wall. It is as difficult for those who have been young to appreciate those who still are young as it is for the late government to appreciate the government of the day. Mistakes they made in their time—they are willing to admit that; but not such mistakes as they see being made now.

Somebody once said that it is the duty of an opposition to oppose. Similarly we must suppose that it is the duty of our elders to find fault. We will not grudge them the performance of their duty—they have little enough else to do—but after studying Captain Gronow we may be tempted on some wet afternoon when our grandmother comments for the hundredth time that it was not so in her day—we may be tempted to reply that, on the contrary, in her day it was precisely so, and that so it is likely to remain for ever and ever more.

It costs $130 a week for a staff to beat the carpets and mats in the British Parliament.

"KING" OF VAST AREA
IN WYOMING IS DEAD

LANDER, Wyo., May 12.—A true "king" of the Western range passed over the border into eternity in the death here of Charles Slough.

Slough reigned supreme as the defender of the law in Fremont County, Wyoming, for 16 years, being first elected sheriff of that county in 1890.

His jurisdiction covered 11,000 square miles of territory.

DOWN IN Eatonton, Georgia,
you'll find real proof of the splendid wearing qualities of Pee Gee Mastic Paint. It was used there some nineteen years ago on the home of Mrs. T. G. Green, who writes the following letter:

"My house was painted with Pee Gee Mastic Paint nineteen years ago, and I want you to estimate what will be needed to go over it again. The house is in splendid condition although such a long time has elapsed since it was last painted. One room in which Pee Gee Flatcoat was used nearly twelve years ago is in good condition still, but I want it freshened up."

The great durability of Pee Gee Mastic Paint is due to its 50% of Zinc content ground in pure Linseed Oil and White Lead, making it a Double Pigment Paint.

Pee Gee Mastic Paint produces a tile-like film which successfully resists the elements, does not crack, peel or chalk off.

The high zinc content gives Pee Gee Mastic its unusual covering and wearing capacity. It is by far the most economical paint you can use.

For interior walls and ceiling, use Pee Gee Flatcoat, the modern, sanitary, durable, flat oil finish. Comes in 24 deep, rich velvety colors.

Rum Served Tars
Fighting Blizzard

LOS ANGELES, May 12.—A story of how rum, served piping hot in pannikins, was an important item of refreshment to members of the crew of the British steamer Berengar during a terrific hurricane in the North Atlantic was told recently at the local harbor by Captain T. B. Donster of the vessel. Captain Donster peered his remarks by an emphatic opinion that prohibition should have no place on sea-going ships.

"We were on our way from Newcastle, England," he said, "and ran into a terrific hurricane which swept our decks with heavy seas, washing away a lifeboat and the auxiliary steering gear on the poop deck.

"The ventilating tunnels were smashed, leaving water free to pour in through them into the crew's quarters, engine room, and threatening to sink the ship. A call was made for volunteers to rig up a line to the forward well, and using that as a life-line the crew worked all day making plank over the openings left by the ventilators.

"It was bitter cold and the work of the men was continually being hampered by the heavy waves. Hot rum was served to them at short intervals to help fortify them against the weather."

The diagram represents a barnyard with a duck pond in the center. The four squares are duck-houses. The four circles are hen-houses. The farmer built a fence that separated the hen-houses from the duck-houses and cut off the duck-houses from the pond, while the duck-houses still had access to the pond. Can you trace the course of the fence?

Man's Arm and Leg Found in Vacant Lot

NEW YORK, May 13.—A human right leg and right arm, found in a vacant lot at the corner of Cromwell avenue and 151st street by Frederick R. Murray, of 171 Amity street. Flushing, a chauffeur awaiting a fare near the Yankee Stadium yesterday afternoon, are believed to be parts of the body of a man murdered last October.

A human head was found in Bronx Park on Oct. 1 and five days later a torso was discovered nearby. On Oct. 10 a human left arm and left leg were found in a lot at Grant avenue and 151st street. In each instance the parts were wrapped in oil cloth. No clue to the identity of the dead man has been discovered by the police. Murray told Police Commissioner of the Highbridge station of his discovery. When Assistant Medical Examiner Karl E. Kennard examined the gruesome find he said that an oil cloth wrapping tied about the arm and leg was of the same design as that used to conceal the other members found. Robert Stettler, keeper of the Fordham Morgue, said he would attempt to match the parts found yesterday with the remainder of the body, which has been preserved at the morgue through the embalming process of Stettler's.

CONVENTION DELEGATES
DESPITE THEIR YOUTH

JACKSON, Tenn., May 14.—If there have ever been delegates to any state convention younger than Carolyn Cawthon and Helen Buck of this city—let them come forward!

The older of the two, Carolyn, is but 11 tender years, and as president of the Juvenile MacDowell Club recently attended the Tennessee Federation of Music Clubs in Chattanooga. Helen, 9, went along as delegate.

The two youngsters gleaned valuable experience in the rudiments of parliamentary law, and friends are hopeful it will stand them in good stead in future years should they decide to enter the political arena.

Those attending the convention say it was a decided and refreshing innovation to see the young president swinging down the aisle with her nine-year-old delegate, each clad in dolly stockings!

Their club has 49 members, and plans to be a power in state musical circles. At least the convention showed they were alive to the importance of proper representation.
